Baccalaureate at Annapolis Heard By 500 Middies

Chaplain W. N. Thomas Delivers Impressive Sermon

Annapolis, Md., May 28 (AP) - A nautical text-"he shall even have the great sea for a border"-rang out through the historic naval academy chapel today as 500 midshipmen of the class of '39 gathered

The vaulted chapel, filled with parents and undergraduates, was hushed in utter silence as Chaplain Thomas quoted at length from the sonorous, almost old testament phrasing of Kahlil Gibran's "The

'The sea that calls all things unto her calls me, and I must embark." Chaplain Thomas read. With solemn emphasis, the chap-

'Only another breath will I draw in this still air, only another loving look cast backward, and then I will stand among you, a seafarer among seafarers.

The baccalaureate sermon was the feature of the day's June week program. In deference to the Sabthe only other scheduled traditional feature of June week.

Hundreds of midshipmen with Sunday liberty thronged the placid Bevern river in canoes, and other hundreds with the legion of sweethearts here for June week, walked slowly through the circled, cobbled streets of colonial crabtown.

The battleships New York, Texas and Arkansas, anchored in Annapolis roads four miles off Hic and were a magnet for the 15. 000 tourists and relatives of midshipmen who crowded Annapolis for the week-long ceremonies.

Tenders ploughed back and forth to the warships.

Thomas B. Finan

THE LOSS of a friend is the greatest of

So wrote Publilius Syrus, Roman dramatist who flourished about forty-five years before the Christian era, and the sentiment has been little improved upon, if at all, during the intervening centuries.

It is a thought that comes now with poignant severity to the people of Cumberland by the death of Thomas B. Finan, one of its leading and most highly esteemed citizens and a business man of unusual character and accomplishments. | coun

For Thomas Finan was a friend of everybody in the community and section, and his friendship, always steadfast and altruistic, was something we all prized. His passing in the very prime of an achieving career that spelled much for the city of Cumberland and the great family of Cumberland people is, accordingly, a distress-

This friendship we valued so highly sprang from a most engaging personality, Tom Finanhe was just "Tom" to almost everybody-was, indeed, a most interesting personage, full of life and energy, intensely interested in the events of the day and glowing with dynamic purposefulness in the possibilities of tomorrow. His was a brilliant mind and it reflected much.

It is difficult to estimate the value of this man to Cumberland and Western Maryland. He was a pioneer-not in the sense of an explorer so much as in the sense of one who goes before to remove obstacles and prepare the way for others-a pathfinder. He was a pathfinder in a time when leadership and guidance were sorely needed, and Tom Finan was always in the front rank of every movement-the leader who went before-that looked to the development of the Cumberland area. In his unselfish leadership he was an active spirit, and in all movements looking to the betterment of his city, county and state, to the growth, development and improvement of their business, industry and social obligations, Tom Finan was always on hand giving to the utmost of his tireless energy, his active brain and his productive help. As is common with all progressive leaders, there were at times those who did not agree with his course in certain things, and there were obstacies impending that some could not fully comprehend; nevertheless, there was foresight in all his methods and it was obvious to everyone that his outlook and his objectives were always imbued with good intentions looking to improvement, uplift and forward progress.

There is, consequently, a big void to be filled man, one that will take long to fill and it proba-Finan filled it. We shall feel his loss the more emergency keenly as time goes on.

seems to know what anything means till he has lost it; and this, I suppose, is the reason why losses-the vanishing away of things-are among the teachings of this world of shadows." So it was with Thomas B. Finan. He was so much every factor and element of its being and its progress, that his work was taken for granted because it was always expected and always to be relied on. We must look upon his untimely departure, therefore, as a teaching from on high even though it is a keenly sorrowful thing to do. Yet there is comfort and consolation in the reminder that he did so much for us and gave us such cheer and encouragement through the

Face Saving Foolishness

THERE IS too much of this presidential face saving business over at Washington. We can't go all the way on this thing and we can't go all the way on that, it is explained, because it means confession of a New Deal flop and we have to do something to save the president's in those instances where his course has proved palpably wrong? If a thing is wrongful, or unworkable, or destructive, there is no call to save anybody's face. In fact, a face is saved much better if it confronts error, acknowledges it and seeks correction

Well, some point out, if we don't save his majesty's face he might become peeved and hand us a veto. Well, maybe the risk would be worth more than the fear. Let the president once in a while be put on the veto spot and shoulder the responsibility instead of trying to shift it somewhere else. Perhaps, in the face of public sentiment, he woudn't be so keen over a veto at that

Rummage Sales

THE MOST OF US are pretty familiar with rummage sales-we have had more of them than normal as the result of the depression and the unnecessary recessions coming thereafter.

Representative J. William Ditter, Republican. of Pennsylvania, used this bargain sale business as an apt illustration in the course of an address delivered Saturday night marking the Ditter recalled President Roosevelt's recent so-called appeasement speech before the retailrs' fedration in Washington in which the president declared that he had "no bargain

A POINT that appears to have been overlcoked by those persons deluded with the notion that the United States is destined to save something or other in Europe despite the fact that it has a lot of things to save at home, is stressed by the Chamber of Commerce of New York in study of the fiscal situation of this nation.

Carry a Spare!

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Would you start out for Yellowstone Park without But, why save the president's face, anyway, a spare tire on your automobile? Even if you had four new tires on the wheels of your car, would you start without a spare?

Well, life's more important than any automobile tire, but too many of us don't carry a spare Because we don't carry a spare, when things go wrong we are out of luck. When we lose our money, we're finished. We have no consolation. We've trusted entirely to ash to pull us through, and when hat goes we have nothing left. We place our happiness too nuch in the hands of other people. Our "popularity" is all that makes us happy. And if we lose the least Marshall Maslin shred of that popularity, we are miserable. We have no spare.

Or we depend entirely on health. We make a god of our strength, our fitness, and life as if we thought our vigorous youth would last forever. It goes, we discover that we cannot do all those things we used to do so easily, and we think we've been badly treated.

Two comparative newcomers to screen ranks, Alan Curtis and Laraine Johnson, win outstanding opportunities in "Sergeant Madden," modern story of the New York police, which opens today at the Maryland Theatre with Wallace Beery in the title role.

Curtis, who first attracted attention in the second male lead of "Mannequin" with Joan Crawford and Spencer Tracy, is shown as Beery's son, a rookie New York policeman who runs afoul of the law and turns bank robber, his father finally being forced to track him down. The role is said to establish him as the season's finest young "menace." Miss Johnson, who came to films from the Long Beach, Calif., Players' Guild, has the feminine lead in "Sergeant Madden" as an Irish waif whom

They Need Care Away From the Beauty Shop

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVEN THOUGH one trot-trots to the beauty shop every week, a certain amount of care must be given to the finger-nails. It is just as well to know what to do, what not to do. One of the "what nots" concerns the metal nail cleaner which should be chucked out of the beauty kit. It makes the inner surface of the nail eave rough so that dust will stick there stubbornly. Have your orange, wood stick handy. Sharpen to a rounded point. When using it don't press deeply into the flesh beneath the nail. Wounds there can become A white nail pencil is convenient.

You can put it in your pencil sharp-ener, have it ever ready for the job. Dip it in water before using. They Need Care Away From the Beauty Shop

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVEN THOUGH one trot-trots to the beauty shop every week, a certain amount of care must be given to the finger-nails. It is just as well to know what to do, what not to do. One of the "what nots" concerns the metal nail cleaner which should be chucked out of the beauty kit. It makes the inner surface of the nail eave rough so that dust will stick there stubbornly. Have your orange, wood stick handy. Sharpen to a rounded point. When using it don't press deeply into the flesh beneath the nail. Wounds there can become

A white nail pencil is convenient. You can put it in your pencil sharpener, have it ever ready for the job. Dip it in water before using. Those hard-working girls who hold down the wife and mother job will find it convenient to use after polishing silver or shining up the furniture.

Cream the cuticle about your pretty finger shells every night; ou'll never have a hangnail to nail to wail about. After a brisk frietion, lift the flesh away from the nail base with the orange wood stick. It is only when the skin fabric clings to the nail that it breaks into maddening little shreds.

Coiffures seem to be having their ups and downs. Whether one should play hairdresses high or low is the favorite subject when the dear hearts get together.

McCoole Youths Taken To Keyser Hospital; Conditions Serious

Three McCoole youths were seriusly injured in an automobile wreck last night on the Fort Ashby-Keyser road about eight miles east of Keyser. One of the victims was knocked right out of his shoes.

Unconscious, the three men were dragged from their crumpled car at the Patterson Creek Bridge where the machine plunged over an embankment and finally smashed into a fence post.
